The Future of the Profession – Challenges and Opportunities (1.0 hr. General CLE)

An interactive discussion with OSBA President Ronald S. Kopp.

Too many new lawyers are saddled with substantial debt, face employment challenges, and may lack the crucial “practice-ready” skills they need to serve clients. Many veteran lawyers want more business development opportunities and work-life balance, and may lack familiarity with the technology needed to take advantage of case management tools for delivering legal services more affordably. Meanwhile, clients are demanding more efficiencies, and nonlawyer legal service providers are jumping into the legal marketplace to meet these demands.

- Are our current processes, rules and regulations outdated and too complex?
- Do nonlawyer legal service providers have a role in the delivery of legal services?
- Should multidisciplinary practices be allowed?

How do we address these issues without compromising our core values of independence, loyalty and confidentiality? We encourage you to bring questions.
